Fire destroys basement

Fire gutted the basement of the home of Utah Technical College President Wilson Sorenson in Provo Saturday afternoon, causing $75,000 in damage, killing two family pets and destroying some family antiques.

The blaze began in the basement kitchen area of the Sorenson residence at 2767 Arapahoe Lane in Indian Hills.

The alarm was turned in about 1:40 p.m.

"Something may have been too close to the stove and ignited," said Provo Fire Battalion Chief Doug Nuttal after his men extinguished the flames. "The basement was severely damaged with extensive smoke and heat damage done to the upper floors."

Three engines and ten firemen responded to the emergency call. "It took half an hour to contain the blaze," Nuttal said. "We spent another three hours cleaning and hauling out the damaged debris."

"My wife and I were away from home at the time of the blaze," Sorenson said. "Neighbors saw the smoke and called the fire department."

"Firemen arrived quickly on the scene," he said

"Ten more minutes, and we would have lost our entire home."

Several antiques belonging to the Sorenson family were destroyed in the blaze. "We had several nicknacks that belonged to my wife's great grandmother," he said. "It's a hard loss to take."

"Our dog and cat were killed in the fire," Sorenson added.

The dog, a small mongrel named "Blackie," and the cat, "Honker," were in the basement when the fire broke out and perished before firemen arrived on the scene.

"They meant a lot to us and we'll miss them," Sorenson said. "Our turtle was right in the hottest spot at the time of the blaze, but he somehow survived."

"Our friends and neighbors have really been great in this time of crisis," he said. "They've offered both financial and physical help."

The Sorensens were temporarily staying with their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Verl Van Wageningen, 2741 Arapahoe Lane.

State school needs funds to survive

This is the first in a three part series on some critical problems facing the American Fork Training School. The Daily Universe sent reporter Brooke Todd and photographer Ravell Call to the state facility for a first hand look:

By BROOKE TODD
Universe Staff Writer

AMERICAN FORK — The Utah State Training School's program for mentally retarded could return to the "sanitorial institution" it once was if the 1979 state legislature does not appropriate $3.5 million in building monies, says the superintendent of the American Fork facility.

In an interview with The Daily Universe, Dr. Paul Sagers said the school will fail to pass federal fire and safety standards if funds to improve buildings are not soon appropriated by the state.

Between 60 and 70 percent of the training school's operation is financed by federal funds, Dr. Sagers added, and this would be lost if the standards are not met.

Currently certified by the Intermediate Care Facility for the Mentally Retarded, the school will have enough funds to operate through June, 1980, Dr. Sagers said. The estimated program budget for this next year is $15.4 million.

The facility depends primarily on federal funds from Title 19 of the Intermediate Care Division Facility for Mentally Retarded. State funds, the superintendent said, are needed to continue upgrading the 46-year-old facilities to meet Title 19 fire and safety standards. If the standards are not met by June 18, 1980 the school will lose about $10 million in federal funds.

Unless the state matches lost federal funds, Dr. Sagers said, the school will reverse its upward trend in care facilities for the mentally retarded. "If we lose the money, we'll lose the program," he said.

The request for funds might not be granted since the governor has asked the legislature to fund only the first four priorities of the State Building Board. The other building projects ahead of the Training would circumvent a key Khomeini objection to Bakhtiar's government — that it is "illegal" because it was appointed by Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Major rioting also broke out in the northern city of Rasht on Sunday.

The tension and violence here had been mounting for days as the Bakhtiar government continued to block Khomeini's plans to return to Iran and transform the country into an Islamic republic.

Thousands of pro-Khomeini protesters flooded Tehran streets Sunday chanting "Death to Bakhtiar!" and one large group tried to storm a police headquarters, flinging gasoline filled bottles against the building.

Trucks rushed to the scene and opened fire with 30-caliber machine guns mounted on the backs of trucks. Military officials later said the rioters were armed with machine guns and grenades, but reporters who witnessed the grisly three-hour battle said they saw none.

Associated Press correspondent Thomas Kent reported from Esfand Square, site of the battle, that screaming rioters dived for cover as bullets slammed into walls above their heads. Some were hit by ricochets as ambulances raced back and forth through the area.

Snipers opened up with pistols from the rooftops. Their identities were unclear but at one point they were firing at demonstrators.

It was Tehran's bloodiest day since Sept. 8, when 121 persons died in political violence. Gunfire continued sporadically after nightfall.

Bakhtiar announced Saturday he intended to fly to Paris to meet with Khomeini and seek his advice on Iran's future.

At first, Khomeini's aides issued conflicting statements about whether the religious leader would receive Bakhtiar. Then Khomeini told reporters Sunday he would not, unless he resigned as prime minister.

The 78-year-old Khomeini reiterated his stand that Bakhtiar's government is "illegal" because it was appointed by the "illegal" shah, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who was forced into an indefinite trip abroad by the mass movement of strikes and demonstrations orchestrated by Khomeini.

Chinese vice premier welcomed to America

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teng Hsiao-ping, the driving force in China's outward reach to the West, arrived in Washington on Sunday for talks with President Carter and a coast-to-coast tour that will draw the world's most advanced nation and its most populous nation closer together.

Teng's silver and gray Boeing 707 China Civil Airlines plane, touched down at Andrews Air Force Base outside the nation's capital at 3:30 p.m. EST, more than an hour behind schedule, apparently because of fog in Shanghai. New fallen snow blanketed the suburban Maryland countryside. The sky was leaden, but the snow stopped shortly before Teng arrived.

The Chinese vice premier, the first of Peking's Communist leaders to visit this country, was welcomed by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and several members of Congress. They stood in 38-degree weather on a tarmac plowed clear of snow for the arrival.

After the welcoming, Teng stepped into a black limousine. U.S. and Chinese flags decorated the front fenders. The limousine was followed by a half dozen security cars carrying Secret Service agents and Chinese police.

Members of Teng's delegation climbed into other cars for the 15-mile ride to Blair House, across the street from the White House. It will be Teng's home during his four-day Washington stay. Mondale returned to downtown Washington by helicopter.

About 60 people gathered to see Teng arrive at Blair House. Police barriers kept them a half block from the presidential guest house. The Chinese leader waved from his limousine, stepping out of the car, then turned to wave again. He smiled broadly, and the onlookers cheered.

There was no sign of hostile demonstrators, although assorted opponents of the Peking regime and the new U.S. policy toward it and Taiwan have announced plans to stage protests on Monday.

The limousine, along Pennsylvania Avenue were decorated with Chinese, American and District of Columbia flags, as is customary when a foreign leader visits Washington.

Teng's schedule listed no public events for the rest of the day.

As he appeared at the door of his China Civil Airlines jet, Teng was applauded by the American welcoming party. He applauded in return, in the traditional Chinese style of thanking his hosts for their greeting.

Teng waved, then descended a ramp, trailed by a half dozen Chinese officials wearing dark coats. Several were women. Two Chinese preceded the vice premier down the ramp and recorded the event with movie cameras.

At the foot of the ramp, Teng and the Americans exchanged greetings. There were no speeches, apparently only small talk. Teng and his delegation shook hands with all of the U.S. officials, including Reps. Phillip Burton, D-Calif.; John Burton, D-Calif.; Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif.; Lindy Boggs, D-La.; and Paul Findley, R-Ill.

Escorted by Mondale, Teng walked along a metal fence, waving to a cheering flag-waving crowd. But they did not approach the fence to shake hands.

Vickie Singer to teach family

By DONNA ROUVIERE
Universe Staff Writer

MARION, Utah — Vickie Singer, wife of polygamist John Singer, will be trained by a private school to educate her children at home, she said Saturday.

Mrs. Singer and her children returned to the Singer farm in Marion Saturday following a closed hearing with 2nd District Juvenile Court Judge John Farr Larson, her attorneys, relatives and Assistant Summit County Attorney Terry Christiansen. She has been given temporary custody of the children.

"Private school administrators have agreed to supervise my teaching of my children," Mrs. Singer said. "Thereby the courts are satisfied."

She refused to name the school, but said its philosophy was similar to the one "John and I did incorporate into our own private school."

Under the arrangement, she said, "I will be able to use the school's materials and the children won't have to compete with peer groups. We can go according to each child's ability, which is what John wanted. We have never tried to compete. My only interest is that my children be able to learn."

"They are far superior to their peer groups in many, many areas," she told the Universe. "We have a different definition of education. According to John's standards, many children would flunk."

"These people with whom we are dealing understand John's and my philosophies," she added.

Mrs. Singer said she would not start immediately to teach the children. "School will have to wait a little while until we get on our feet. We'll have to get over this period of time — we miss John very much," she said.

The 36-year-old widow described the past week as: "Like a nightmare. Sometimes it doesn't seem real. You wouldn't believe the heartbreak there's been," she said.

Mrs. Singer spent the week with her children at a

Pope calls for 'spiritual' change

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — Pope John Paul II, cheered by millions as he carned its way to Puebla, told Latin American bishops in a major address Sunday that social justice must be sought spiritually and not politically.

The pope encountered opposition as a group of rebel priests, demanding that the Roman Catholic church take a more active role against oppression, organized a "dissidents' conference."

They said it would discuss human rights and social reforms, which they claimed would be ignored by the bishops' meeting.

Singing soothes hijacking woes

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman who allegedly commandeered a jumbo jet with 131 persons aboard was jailed Sunday after being overpowered by an FBI agent as actor Theodore Bikel sang to calm his fellow passengers.

The FBI said Irene McKinney, a 49-year-old divorced mother of two described as distraught about her family and the Roman Catholic Church, commandeered the plane because she wanted to pre-empt network television.

Nelson Rockefeller rites today

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The body of former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller was cremated Sunday, family spokesmen said, a day before a private memorial service was scheduled at the Rockefeller estate overlooking the Hudson River.

Rockefeller's ashes will be buried Monday at the family cemetery at the Pocantico Hills estate, where he and his brothers and sister spent much of their childhood.

Rockefeller, who died Friday night at the age of 70, was cremated at the Ferndale Crematory in the Westchester County town of Hartsdale, said a spokeswoman who asked not to be identified.

Plane crashes near Park City

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — Two persons were slightly injured in the crash of a light plane near the old Judge Mine just outside Park City, authorities said.

Tom Black, watch supervisor for the Federal Aviation Administration's Flight Services Station in Salt Lake City, identified the pilot of the Piper PA-22 aircraft as Alan Alderson of Heber City. Black said Alderson was accompanied by an unidentified passenger when the plane crashed Saturday afternoon.

Moslems, Mormons feel family important

By ALICE TATE
Assistant News Editor

Mormons met Moslems Sunday night in a fireside and both groups learned of the similarities which exist between the religions.

About 25 folk dancers from Libya visited campus as special guests of BYU's Near Eastern Studies program Sunday and attended a fireside where the similarities between the Islamic and Mormon religions were presented.

Donna Lee Bowen, BYU instructor in political science, said no two peoples are more diverse and misunderstand each other more than Americans and the Arabs. Having lived and studied in the Middle East, Ms. Bowen said although members of the two cultures do not necessarily look, dress, or act alike, they are similar in the importance they place on the family.

Speaking first in English and then in Arabic, Ms. Bowen read a prayer, from the Moslem Holy Book, asking for a righteous family. The love and tenderness of the bond of marriage was referred to in the book. The Moslem's value of children was expressed in a quote from Mohammed which says, "Wealth and children are the adornment of this world." Likewise, parents were revered in the quote, "Paradise lies at mothers' feet."

Speaking to the Mormons, she asked, "Where else can you find anything closer to how we reverence our parents?" The Moslems believe the family is the "way to best maintain society at large," Ms. Bowen said. "Anything which menaces this family is a menace to society."

The bonds fostered through playing, working and praying together in a family are as important to the Arabs as the Mormons. The family is the "basic building block" in Islam, just as it is in Mormonism.

Ms. Bowen explained how sometimes these people do not think Americans place any importance on the family. Speaking to the Libyans in their native tongue, Arabic, she told them how important the family is in the Mormon world. "We all believe in God," she said. "We just have different ways of worship and we need to understand each other."

Shorter students?

By this time in the semester many students begin to get that worn down feeling. Maybe it comes from walking to a class in the Richards P.E. building from a class in the ROTC Building and trying to do it in five minutes. Whatever the case, Camron Call, son of Ravell Call, Sr., from Alton, Wyo., is a little shorter than most new students. Maybe if his backpack didn't have so many books in it he could stand a little taller.

Terrorist bombing kills two

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A terrorist bomb exploded in a garbage can on a busy street Sunday in the Mediterranean resort city of Netanya, killing two persons and wounding 34 others, police said. Palestinians claimed responsibility for the blast.

The bomb sprayed metal fragments and glass splinters into the crowded shopping street. Roadblocks were set up in the center of the seaside town as fire hoses washed the blood from the streets.

There was no immediate indication from Israel whether any reprisals would be taken against terrorist bases outside Israel. Police said they rounded up several Arab suspects and took others into custody to protect them from enraged citizens.

Revelations discussed by Elder Bruce R. McConkie

By ROY JOHNSON
Universe Staff Writer

The Lord reveals his word through his prophets, Elder Bruce

R. McConkie of the Council of the Twelve of the LDS Church said Saturday.

Elder McConkie was the keynote speaker in the Seventh Annual Sidney B. Sperry Symposium of the Scriptures, held on the BYU campus.

He outlined the method in which the Lord has revealed his word through one man in the various dispensations.

Joseph Smith, the Lord's spokesman for this dispensation, is "one of the 10 or 20 greatest spirits so far born on the earth." Through him three great truths, which "overide all others," were given to the world. The message is the truth concerning God the Eternal Father, his son, Jesus Christ, and the Holy Ghost. He said Joseph Smith as a dispensation head, "reflected the Lord to the people."

Elder McConkie said the Lord's word may be found in "the visions and revelations that came to Joseph Smith," and from those who have come since Joseph Smith.

When someone speaks through the power of the Holy Ghost, they speak the words of Christ, Elder McConkie said. The words contained in the scriptures are, "just as true and binding as any word given by prophets."

Concerning further revelation, Elder McConkie said, "The Lord has given all the people of the world are ready to receive." If we were to receive more knowledge than already given, it would be a "barrier to our progress," he said. But as people prepare themselves they will receive much more from the Lord.

Singers' education

 ater home in Salt Lake City. "When they released me from jail, they told me I was free to go wherever I wanted to," she said. "Of course, I had to be with the children."

"My attorneys asked me if I wanted to press charges or have an investigation," Mrs. Singer said, but I don't believe in it. I don't believe in revenge and neither would John. This is my motto — This whole burden is not mine. Whatever the judgement e, it's for the Lord to be the judge."

"As far as holding any grudges about it, if I'm truly Christian, I cannot do so. It's in the hands of God."

"John did not die in vain," she said. "The fruits will shortly come through."

Mrs. Singer said the family will stay on the farm. This is home," she said. "We could never go anywhere else."

Richard Watson, a neighbor whose wife's family holds the legal title to the Singer farm and surrounding property, said they would not try to make ne Singer family move away.

"We as a family would be very willing to offer neighborly support to make life as comfortable as we possibly could for them," he said. "We would do all we could to be neighborly and considerate and kind," e said, "but we don't want anybody else besides hem living up there."

In the past, the property owners objected to inger's allowing people outside the Singer family to ve with him, Watson said, because of a short water supply.

"It will not be easy for them up here, though," Watson commented. "It's a hard life up here. We ave cold winters and it will be hard for the children o take care of the animals, raising the garden, watering, getting wood day in and day out and still have time for school."

Shirley Black Singer, Singer's second wife, said she hopes to regain custody of her three children, who were returned to their father, Dean Black, following Singer's death. A hearing to decide who gets custody of the children has been set for March 19, she said, but "we're going to try to settle it out of court."

Mrs. Black said she plans to stay at the Singer farm, "If I can. But I will do what I can to get the children back." She said she might have to agree to move into town in order to regain custody of the children.

Mrs. Black said she has not seen the children since the shooting of Singer.

Singer's neighbors — all of whom are relatives of the late Gustav Weller, who owned a large parcel of land in Marion, including the Singer property — have received threatening letters accusing them of being involved in the shooting of Singer.

One letter postmarked St. George and sent in Xerox copies to several of the neighbors, said, "I pray to the LORD Jesus Christ that your souls be wiped off the face of the earth in like manner which you have sanctioned ... I pray you will be condemned to outer darkness forever with your same kind of blood and natures."

Mrs. Richard Watson also received a letter signed by "The Gang who hates you."

"Hang your head in shame ... I hope Mrs. Singer turns her nose up at you forever," it said.

Mrs. Watson also said a man dug Singer's blood out of the snow-covered lane where he was killed, dumped some of it on her property and some on her sister Mrs. Donald Jepson's land, and took the rest away in his truck.

YSI Conference

'Put on the armour of God'

By PAMELA MARTIN
 Universe Staff Writer

Elder Vaughn J. Featherstone of the First Council of the Seventy, conducted a weekend of activities in the BYU Bi-regional Young Special Interest Conference.

Emphasizing a personal relationship with the savior, he spoke on the examples of Elijah, President Spencer W. Kimball and various individuals who have received blessing from their faith. The disciples of Jesus, also being full of faith, called him "The Christ," having "the words of eternal life." "If that is true," Featherstone asks, "than what else in all the world matters?" Is there anything that really matters except making certain our lives are one with his principles and his teachings?"

He concluded by saying, "We're in the last 30 seconds of the greatest ballgame ever in the history of the world. We're outnumbered and the coach has sent in his first string. But one thing we do know," he asserted, "we're going to win."

Saturday's YSI activities included a talk by Elder John Madsen, executive assistant to the Priesthood Department, who spoke on the conference theme,

"Putting on the Whole Armour of God."

As protections in our daily war against the adversary, he advised, "enter the temple and take on the holy endowments of God, and partake of the sacrament."

Citing Doctrine and Covenants 27:15-18, he discussed the aspects of truth, righteousness, preparation of the gospel, faith, salvation, and the word of God.

Some of the morning workshops included Jaymann Payne discussing Mormon womanhood and the Equal Rights Amendment and Eric G. Stephan talking on how to improve interpersonal communication.

In the afternoon, Tom Osmond, the church's first deaf, full-time missionary, spoke on some of his experiences with his handicap. His wife, Lyn related some of the problems and therapy a deaf person has.

Jerry Rose, YSI counselor from the BYU 10th Stake, followed with comments on the characteristics of faith, saying, "We must know God exists, have a correct idea of his character, and then follow his will."

Closing remarks were given by George Pace, Stake President to the YSI, on the inconsistencies between what is real and is perceived to be real.

Cowboys end Y win streak

By CARL HAUPT
Assistant Sports Editor

The Cougars fell into a tie for first place in the Western Athletic Conference Saturday night when the Wyoming Cowboys downed BYU 71-69.

Utah and BYU are now tied for the lead in the WAC with 4-1 records. The Cougars had a one game lead in the standings until Saturday when the Cowboys destroyed BYU's hopes for a sweep of its road trip to Laramie and Ft. Collins.

Cougar coach Frank Arnold praised the Cowboys after the game. "They are a fine basketball team," he said. "Their 2-3 record (in WAC play) is deceiving. They play smart basketball."

Wyoming took an early lead in the first half as Lonnie Buckner paced the Cowboys to a 13-4 margin. Kenneth Ollie scored a layup on a garbage shot to begin the game and Buckner added a 15-foot bank shot from the right side to give the early lead to Wyoming. BYU tied the score at four but then watched as the Cowboys rolled up nine straight points.

Traded buckets

The teams traded buckets for several minutes and the score was 20-10 with 12:01 remaining in the first half before BYU began to cut into Wyoming's lead. The Cougars patiently worked for the good shot to cut the Cowboys' lead and fought a four-corner Cowboy offense at the same time.

BYU regained the lead with 4:50 left in the opening half when Devin Durrant scored on a driving layup to make the score 28-27, in favor of the Cougars. Durrant committed an offensive foul on the play and Wyoming regained the lead momentarily with two foul shots.

Durrant, who was high scorer in the game with 21 points, gave the lead right back to the Cougars by scoring off a stolen pass and then hitting two charity tosses when he was fouled by Buckner.

The teams again traded baskets and BYU left the court at the intermission with a 36-35 lead.

The second half was a nip-and-tuck affair with BYU repeatedly gaining a three point lead only to see it cut to one by Wyoming. The Cougars used a four-corner offense most of the half.

BYU managed to construct a seven point lead but saw it vanish when they failed to hit their shots from the charity stripe. "We should have had a 12 point lead," said Arnold.

Bradley fouled

The Cougars led by three with 1:58 left but Charles Bradley got a two pointer on a follow through and was fouled by Fred Roberts while in the act of shooting. Bradley made the free throw and regulation time ended in a tie when Steve Craig missed a long shot with two seconds left on the clock.

The opening minutes of overtime saw the Cougars go into a four corner stall hoping for the go ahead points at the end of the five minute period but he situation changed when Cougar guard Danny Ainge fouled out on a controversial call. "We had four fouls in our book on Ainge," said Arnold. "We could be wrong, but we are pretty careful about things like that."

Wyoming center Doug Bessert hit both free throws after being fouled by Ainge and then got two more when he was fouled by Craig. Bessert's free throws were enough for the victory. BYU had a chance to tie the game with two seconds remaining but Runia missed a 25-foot shot at the buzzer.

Hansen shines as Y takes third

It was a bright weekend for Cougar wrestler Brad Hansen, who broke a tournament record on his way to a championship, but a dark weekend for the Cougar team as they dropped their Mountain Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Tournament title for a third place finish.

Hansen, wrestling back down at 167 pounds after several undefeated stints at the 177 slot, decided Mark Harris of Utah State, 125, in the championship round to take his fourth straight title at the MIWA tournament. Hansen is the only wrestler in the tournament's history to achieve this.

But Hansen was not the only Cougar to claim a tournament title. Ed Maisey, 134 pounds, claimed a 3-0 tournament total to take the championship. 158 pound Donnie Owen accumulated a 4-0 tournament record to win his weight class. The Cougars failed to stave off University of Northern Colorado and Colorado State however, who took the top two tournament spots with 58.25 and 59.25 respectively. BYU totaled 53.5 for a third place finish, and was followed by University of Colorado with 48.25. The Cougars had previously toppled both UNC and CSU in dual matches.

Childs vaults 16-6 in Y invitational

Pole-vaulter Chris Childs scaled the 16-6 mark to qualify himself for the NCAA's post-season NCAA competition, highlighting Saturday's BYU Invitational indoor track competition held in the Smith Fieldhouse.

The event, which attracted Weber State, Utah and the College of Eastern Utah in addition to BYU was not team scored. There were, however, several outstanding performances by Cougar athletes.

Childs, who barely missed at 17-0, assured himself a spot in the national competition with his strong vault. High jumper Kim Neilson, was unable to clear 7-1, narrowly missing his chance to qualify for the same post season meet. However, Neilson's 6-11 was good enough to win the competition.

Freshman Anders Jonsson, turned in a good toss of 57-3 in the shot put to win his event. Zenos Moreno also missed qualifying for NCAA in the 880 yard run. Moreno's 1:52.93 was two-tenths of a second off the qualifying time.

Although still very early in the track and field season, coach Clarence Robinson was "pleased" with the outcome of the meet. "We had a number of excellent performances," said Robinson. "It's still very early and we should come right along."

Y swimmers sink undefeated Pokes

Paced by Corey Killpack's 200-yard butterfly, which qualified him for the NCAA championships, the BYU swim team handed the University of Wyoming their first defeat of the year Friday evening, 78-57.

"We swam really well," coach Tim Powers said following the meet. "The kids are on schedule and making progress."

The Cougars swept 10 of 12 events and upped their season record to 8-5. Along with the 200-yard butterfly Killpack won the 200-yard individual medley.

In the 1000 freestyle, BYU's John Sorich set a pool record with a time of 9:40.0. Sorich was the Cougars' other double winner taking the 500-yard freestyle.

"As you learn to express yourself, and begin to make a fool of yourself, you can feel that openness, that inquiringness of learning," says Clayne Robison, who teaches Music 105R. His method of "inner singing" has made his class one of the most popular on campus.

'Inner singing'

By MARCI JUDD
Universe Entertainment
Writer

Though it has the same facilities as any other classroom on campus, the class is somehow different. Students are sprawled on the floor, singing. There's a guy playing football on one side of the room, throwing an imaginary ball and generally looking tough. He's singing too. And between hummed bars the "swosh" of a skier is felt.

On another day the class is in the middle of a discussion. Students speak of "brakes and pedals," the "Grand Canyon," and "angels."

Students in this class will tell you it's one of the "wierdest" classes they've ever been in, but it's turning out to be a lot of fun.

The class is Music 105R, group voice instruction, taught by Clayne Robison of the BYU Music Department. The football, skiing and sprawling are part of his program of helping students learn to sing by eliminating self-doubts and regaining a childlike openness and desire to learn.

A child learns un-happily. Robison says, "I try to create a child-like environment where a person can discover what it feels like to draw upon others for their needs without being ashamed."

This requires some "unlearning" of such self-defeating habits as nervousness, self-condemnation and lapses in concentration, he adds.

Students are encouraged to express themselves physically in ways that will help them feel like children so they can learn openly as children do.

"As you learn how to express yourself, and perhaps begin to make a fool of yourself, you can feel that openness, that inquiringness of learning. You develop a willingness to ask questions, not necessarily by using words," Robison said.

The unusual terminology Robison uses in classroom discussions is nothing more than his way of trying to help his students understand different feelings that can derive from music. "Brakes and pedals" refers to the use of muscles that either free or restrict a person's singing.

"Angels," refers to "something that shines through when a person sings that tells you they have yielded themselves to the things they feel." And the "Grand Canyon" students are encouraged to sing with enough energy that someone on the other (Cont. on p. 7)

Junk season comes again to television

by Associated Press
Gee, it's that time of year already. The junk season.

This is when television, having run out of football and still several weeks short of baseball, tries up an offering of range and sundry activities loosely termed, or.

Junk sports are sketched under several times. SportsWorld, Sports Spectacular, Superstars, and Challenge of the Sexes, being a few. It's hoped that we are so hooked on the pattern of weekend sports watching that, even when there are no sports to watch, we'll stay tuned.

No substance, just form. The networks think that after those long months of football watching, we'll watch anything, as long as there is some screen activity and sportscaster noise.

Consider the fare: NBC, which should be proud of bringing us the best Super Bowl in years, is going to follow that extravaganza with a real class act, The World's Worst and Cannonball Diving Championships on Sports World.

Speaking of bellyflops, CBS has one of its own, a junk sports standard called, Challenge of the Sexes. This is when poor Vin Scully, one of the best sportscasters in television, is sent to some winter sports haven to cover a hybrid version of golf or tennis or some other sport willing to be desecrated in the name of television.

The premise of Challenge of the Sexes is that competition between men and women can be entertaining and valid once the odds are evened a bit; a dubious idea lifted from the Bobby Riggs capers a few years ago. What CBS gives us is an exercise in silly that showcases the greed, not the skills, of the participants.

Then there is Superstars, the flagship of the junk sports fleet. The creator of this thing must harbor a profound disdain for the American sports fan.

This ABC sports thriller supposes that we are so taken by big sports names that we'll follow them anywhere. We get to see jockeys play golf and boxers lift weights and runners play football in exotic locations.

One of the cutest features of these contests between displaced athletes is the "most game interview." One such meaningful encounter - a classic, in fact - emerged on last weekend's Superstars.

A baseball player had just outrun some other jocks in a 100-yard dash, displaying no uncommon grace. The announcer shoved a mike under his face and asked something like, "How does this relate to what you do on the baseball field?"

"Well," our star replied, "it's kinda like running from first to third...except, a straight line is easier."

A straight line is just what's needed here - from the couch to the "off" button.

Otello opera is performed

The Utah Opera Company will stage its first performance of the new year, Verdi's "Otello," in the newly restored Capitol Theatre. Featuring tenor Glade Peterson in the title role, the production will be given February 1-8, 1979.

General Director, Glade Peterson, has been saving this opera for the company's premiere production in its new home, and it happens to coincide with a year in which a resurgence of interest has occurred in Verdi's "Otello."

Joining the Utah Opera Company in its performances will be the Utah Symphony with guest conductor, Juan Matute.

Reid Nibley, well- own pianist and also a member of the BYU usic faculty, has been ving his piano stu- ds a dose of this kind learning. He describes as the "most exciting aching experience" he as ever had.

"In my piano students are some things ming out that you ould never think possi- le. It is the most markable way I have en of exceeding your capabilities," said ibley.

He added that he has und application for his kind of learning in most all aspects of his ie.

"A great deal of the sponsibility in the arning process rests on he teacher to allow stu- ds to learn in a laxed, undemanding mpire. Instead of instantly reminding them to sit raight, play with cur- ed fingers, and keep heir shoulders relaxed, i.e., Nibley models rrectly for them, after hich the student usually exhibits ex- ellent form. They are nable to concentrate Nibley is currently enrolled in Robison's voice lab to "learn how to sing," Nibley said.

Richard Anderson, who also teaches piano in the Music Depart- ment, says that there is an untapped reservoir of talent within his stu- dents that he has been able to penetrate by teaching his students to eliminate their fears and play without restric- tions.

"It isn't necessary for the mind to concentrate on what notes to play and how to play them," said Anderson. "The mind dictates to the muscles what they have to do to make the song sound like it should."

Robison adds that he would like to see this kind of music class become the heart of the general education ex- perience. "Every incom- ing student should be enticed to take it," he says. "This way, they can learn how to open themselves up to kinds of learning at the begin- ning of their educational experience."

"A child learns unembarrassed. I try to create a child-like environment where a person can discover what it feels like to draw upon others for their needs without being ashamed."

•Training school needs $3.5 million

School are: Department of Public Safety, a juvenile court, a land purchase for Dixie College and construction on the University of Utah campus.

In past years the School had been on priorities as low as 12 and 18, and were still granted funding, Dr. Sagers said.

Of the 818 residents living on the American Fork campus, not one of their beds meet Title 19 standards. The primary violation is the amount of square footage allotted each bed. According to Dr. Sagers, the school is currently involved in a building and remodeling project which would bring the facilities up to the federal standards. The project has been divided into five phases.

Phases I and II have already been granted funding by past state legislatures. These two phases will construct facilities for 296 beds and replace three of the oldest buildings on campus.

An estimated $6.4 million is needed to finish phases three through five. The $3.5 million is part of the $6 million figure and would be used to begin phase III, Dr. Sagers said.

The State Department of Social Services asked the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for an extension until June 18, 1982 to meet federal standards. The request was temporarily denied until the 1979 state legislature appropriates funds to finish the project.

The federal department responded: "Considering the appropriations by your previous two legislatures, it seems probable that the 1979 legislature may be willing to appropriate only a part of the estimated $6.4 million in additional funds required, leaving it to the following legislature to provide the balance. This would be acceptable provided the 1979 appropriation is sufficient in amount to continue substantial progress in meeting Federal regulations."

"This seems very reasonable to me," Dr. Sagers said. "Even though people don't like the Federal government telling them what to do ... You take the money, you take the regulations."

The Mental Retardation Association of Utah is also planning to build cottages with 136 beds meeting regulations. It is not exactly known when this project will begin construction, Dr. Sagers said.

Should these projects be completed by the 1980 deadline, there would be 432 beds meeting federal standards, and funds would be granted for those 432 beds. It is more likely, said Dr. Sagers, that only the facilities for the 296 beds from state funds will be constructed at that time. The lost money from sub-standard beds would be about $6 million per year, Dr. Sagers said.

"It seems the logical thing to do," said Dr. Sagers, for the State legislature to appropriate the $3.5 million requested, allowing the school to meet the federal standards by extending the deadline. "But this is not a logical year," he added.

Of the 10 buildings effected by the five-phase construction project, four will be completely torn down after the new facilities are built and six will be remodeled, according to Dr. Sagers.

Most of the older buildings place large groups of residents together in one room for sleeping. There may be from 16 to 30 or 40 beds in one large room. The newer buildings are planned to have sleeping facilities with one, two or four residents per room.

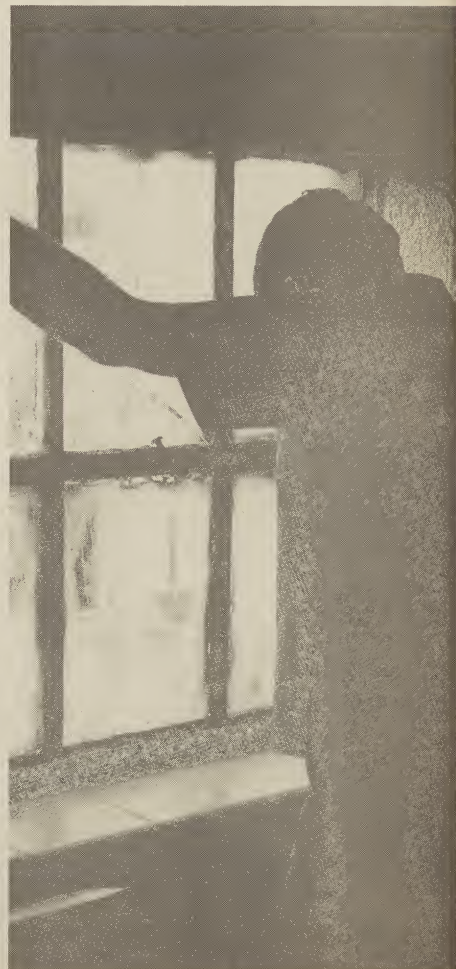

Several of the older buildings also have a second story, which sometimes provides a physical obstacle for residents who may also be physically handicapped. The new buildings will be built with only one story, according to Dr. Sagers.

Only the physical environment and fire safety standards have not yet been met. Dr. Sagers said the training school was able to hire enough staff to meet the minimum staff-to-resident ratios required in 1978.

Tuesday: how the staff feels about Training School improvements in the last 10 years.

Training school clients assemble pamphlets in a workshop, which is one of the school's programs for the mentally retarded.

A resident of the training school gazes out a window. This 46-year-old building is scheduled to be replaced this year.
